Mrs. Mildred Weller, K. J. Herrmann Win Major Awards in Contest Here

JUDGE WEDNESDAY

Winners May Call on Donating Merchants

Once again the people of Circleville have done themselves proud in the way of Christmas decorations for their homes, in the opinion of the judges, who visited the city Wednesday evening. Their comment was that the quality of the decorations had shown a considerable improvement over last year, just as the 1930 decorations exceeded those of the preceeding year.

The outstanding displays in Class A, homes valued under $5,000, were those of Mrs. Mildred Young Weller, 164 E High-st, with a beautifully laid out porch display incorporating a scene showing Santa Claus near a mantel piece, Leona May Brown, 127 Pleasant-st, with windows and doors tastefully outlined and the whole porch symetrically outlined around them, and Ludwig Haecker, 166 E High-st, with a very pretty layout, covering the entire porch. These were the cash prize winners in this class, $25 for first, $10 for second and $5 for third.

In Class B, houses valued over $5,000, Karl J. Herrmann's house, 118 N Washington-st, tastefully decorated from its top to the ground level, won the judge's unanimous choice for the first prize J Wallace Crist's residence, 536 N Court-st, with sprigs of Christmas trees intertwined around the lights on the porch was picked as second choice, while the varied decorations, including lamps in each panel of the door and all around the porch and side of the house won the third prize for C. L. Mack, 813 N. Court-st.

KIDNAPING SYNDICATE IS BROKEN

Pat Roche, Investigator, Reports That 30 Kidnapers Are Captured

SOME IDENTIFIED

Middlewest Is Source of Operations

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—In a concentrated drive to wipe out a gigantic kidnaping syndicate whose activities spread over wide sections of the middle west, investigators for the state's attorney today had 30 suspects in custody.

Twelve of the suspected members of the huge abduction organization are women, it was revealed by Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney. Roche directed the campaign which resulted in the arrests.

HELD IN HOTEL

The prisoners were being held incommunicado in several heavily-guarded suites of the Congress hotel. They were rounded up in raids in Chicago, St. Louis, and Peoria, Ill., the chief investigator disclosed.

Five of the suspects, it was announced, have made full confessions, accounting for 17 kidnapings during the past two years. Hundreds of thousands of dollars, Roche declared, has been amassed by the syndicate in the form of ransom.

Among the recent profitable abductions reported to have been engineered by the huge ring were those of James Hackett, wealthy Blue Island gambler, John J. Lynch, reputed handbook operator; Fred J. Blumer, a brewer of Monroe, Wis., and W. C. Flanigan, an alleged handbook syndicate owner of Gary, Ind.

WITHHOLD NAMES

To prevent filing of habeas corpus writs and to protect information which might lead to additional arrests, Roche refused to divulge the names of any of his prisoners. He announced he had "enough evidence to warrant trial," but wanted to round up the rest of the gang before making public the details of the kidnaping conspiracy.

Although the prisoners have been held incommunicado, it was learned that one of them is John Pinzorri, alleged to be the leader of the ransom gang.

Both Hackett and Lynch were taken to the hotel to view the suspects and the former said to have identified five of them as members of the group who imprisoned him in a suburban Burnham workingman's cottage last May until his wife was able to raise the $75,000 cash demanded for his release.

“LET THE LAW TAKE ITS OWN COURSE”

An Editorial

While many residents and taxpayers of Pickaway-co are of the opinion that it is lamentable that the county must spend between $15,000 and $20,000 to try four negroes and one white man charged with the brutal murder of John Kidney, this is the only course open for the court to follow.

The statutes of Ohio and of the nation declare that any person is innocent of a charged crime unless proven guilty before a jury composed of 12 qualified persons It is true that they have told in detail of conspiring to rob Mr Kidney. But whether or not they have confessed the robbery and eventual death of the well known farmer and blacksmith the county must give them a fair trial

COST TO BE GREAT

It has been estimated that each trial will cost between $3,000 and $4,000, with attorneys to be paid to defend the indigent men, costs of the court, of jurors, of witnesses, of housing and feeding the prisoners, of stenographic work and many other costs too numerous to mention But we reiterate, there is nothing else to do under the law.

If the five men would have been taken from their cells by irate residents of the county, and done away with, the county would have had the sum of $5,000 to pay the state for each man who was taken thusly. Figuring it in the long run, the expense to the county, the possible loss of life in the sheriff's department and among civilians who certainly would have been resisted had they tried to take the alleged robbers and murderers, the blow it would have been to Pickaway-co's law-abiding reputation, it is clear that the only course to follow is the lawful one.

The editor has on his desk at this time a letter written by a reputable taxpayer who feels as many, many others in the county do, but what is there to do about the situation?

The letter, written by a man whose name is withheld follows

"To the Honorable Judge and taxpayers of Pickaway-co

"I think it is high time that the taxpayers of this county would rebel against upholding such outlaws as we have in jail now. They, who so brutally murdered a man, then abused a poor invalid like they did and then to think the law would spend $15,000 to $20,000 to protect them.

"They, themselves acknowledged to the deed and I think it is a disgrace to Pickaway-co or the state of Ohio to uphold such criminals as they are. The sooner our country gets rid of this class of people the better off it will be. It is no wonder we have so many crimes committed in our state when the law upholds such people as they are."

A taxpayer.

FOLLOW STATUTES

The statutes state that a judge must provide persons without money with counsel through which to make a defense and that is what the court has done. Attorneys have been named to defend the men, according to law. The five men were to be arraigned before Judge Joseph W. Adkins this morning.

Our advice is "Let the Law Take Its Course."

TROJANS ARE CHAMPIONS

Southern California Team Defeats Tulane 21-12 In Rose Bowl Game.

By GEORGE T. DAVIS

PASADENA, Jan. 2—They've showed that they can "dish it out" and now the Trojans of Southern California have proved that they can "take it" as well.

It was their ability to withstand an inspired Tulane attack that enabled the Trojans to score a 21 to 12 victory in the annual Rose bowl game and win the championship of the United States.

Expected to win by at least three touchdowns, the Trojans had to battle to the last ditch to eke out a nine-point victory Tulane, with the best team ever to come out of the southland—although it is the only one to be beaten in the annual tournament of roses game—outcharged, out-rushed and out-passed the Trojans, but the latter made the most of their opportunities.

It was Erny Pinckert who saved the day for Southern California. Defensively, he was a marvel against the aerial game of the greenies and their running attack, while he scored two of the three touchdowns by reverse plays over the sector that was guarded by Jerry Dalrymple, Tulane's all-American flankman

The other Trojan tally, the first of the day, was made by Ray Sparling on a reverse off left tackle, which meant that all three tallies were the result of "Pop" Warner's reverse plays that Howard Jones has developed to such a high degree this year.

WETS LEADING

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 2.—With the three to one wet lead being only slightly diminished as returns began trickling in from the rural districts, wets continued jubilant today as the country's dryest districts were shown to have voted at least 60 per cent against prohibition in the national referendum.

HUNT ABDUCTOR OF 8-YEAR-OLD

COLUMBUS, O., Jan 2.—Search for the abductor of Adda B. Ruhl, 8, who was held captive in a garage here for six hours Thursday night, continued unabated today while detectives grilled numerous suspects. The girl has failed to identify five suspects who were taken into custody by police Friday.

According to the authorities, the girl was accosted Thursday night while returning home from an errand With threats of violence, the kidnaper forced her into a garage and attempted to assault her.

OHIO HAS DEFICIT

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 2—The state of Ohio today officially started its new year with a rather poor financial status. Although the state treasury had a balance of $516 929.49, outstanding bills totalled approximately $1,000,000, making a deficit of about $500,000.

In order to meet payrolls and other expenses during the first three months, transfers from other departments to the general operating fund will be necessary. Until March, no large amount of revenue will be received.

During the latter part of 1931, such transfers were made by the board of control but loans of more than $4,500,000 were returned by Dec. 15.

CONDEMN 3 FOR FATAL ACCIDENT

KHABAROVSK, Siberia, Jan. 2.—A Soviet court today sentenced four railway men employed on the Usuri line to be shot for negligence growing out of the recent wreck of an express freight train in which a dozen lives were lost and several persons seriously injured

The men condemned to die are the engineer, said to have been drunk when the accident occurred; the fireman, the conductor and a switchman.

It never pays to keep the fire of hate burning in your heart.

BROWN HANDS OUT LAST FINE

Mrs. Brown Committed To Workhouse Unless She Pays $150 Liquor Fine.

Probate Judge E. A. Brown dealt out his last sentence for violation of prohibition laws Thursday afternoon when he sentenced Mrs. Ethel Smith Brown, 31, Town-st, for possession of intoxicating liquor. She was fined $150 and costs and committed to the Columbus workhouse until fine and costs are paid

Tuesday was the date set as the deadline for the payment of the fine

Mrs Brown was arrested last Saturday evening following a raid at her home by Deputy Sheriffs Bryan Custer, Miller Fissell and Bob Armstrong when a gallon of whiskey was found.

This was Judge Brown's last sentence as the new probate court code is now in effect and transfers liquor cases to common pleas court.

Judge Brown expressed a sigh of relief as he handed out his last sentence as he said the sentencing part of his job had caused him much worry.

HEPBURN IS HURT

OAKLAND. Cal., Jan 2—Ralph Hepburn, 35, Los Angeles, one of America's outstanding automobile racing drivers, and Bryan Saulspaugh, 24, of Rock Island, Ill. were fighting for their lives today.

GENEVA, Jan. 2—Defied by Japan, the League of Nations will make no further effort to intervene in the Manchurian war

A league spokesman made this announcment today upon receipt of word that Japanese troops had occupied Chinchow despite representation by the league council supported by the United States government.

JAPANESE TAKE CHINCHOW TODAY

TOKYO, Jan. 2--Japanese troops finally reached Chinchow today.

An armored trainload of soldiers and a cavalry detachment of the Kamura brigade were reported to have entered the city, officially removing the last vestige of Chinese authority in Manchuria.

AMERICANS BARRED

COLON, P. C. Z., Jan. 2—Three Americans, all of New York, today were denied premission to land in the canal zone because they did not have the $500 necessary under the new immigration law.

They are being held in quarantine at Balboa, at the Atlantic end of the canal, and will be shipped back to New York as soon as possible.

The three are Maurice, Martin, and Minnie Bray In ordering deportation of the Americans, authorities warned others contemplating landing in the canal zone to have the amount specified in the new immigration law.

BOYS ARRESTED

Beryl Griffin, 16, of Chillicothe, is being held in custody here on a charge of stealing the horn from the automobile of James Sampson, E. Franklin-st. Two other Chillicothe youths, Roland Blankenship and Eugene Ankrom, were to be taken into custody today by Officers Will McCrady and Probation officer L. M. Brown later Saturday. McCrady has obtained the stolen horn.

BOTTLE AIDS IN STUDY

KAHALUU, Oahu, T. H—Japanese residents of this fishing village were much interested in finding a bottle cast up on the beach. When opened it revealed a message that declared it had been thrown in the sea 30 miles west of Cape Gongen, Hokkaido, Japan, three years, one month and 28 days ago It will be returned to the fisheries experimental station at Otaru, for their information in surveying ocean currents.

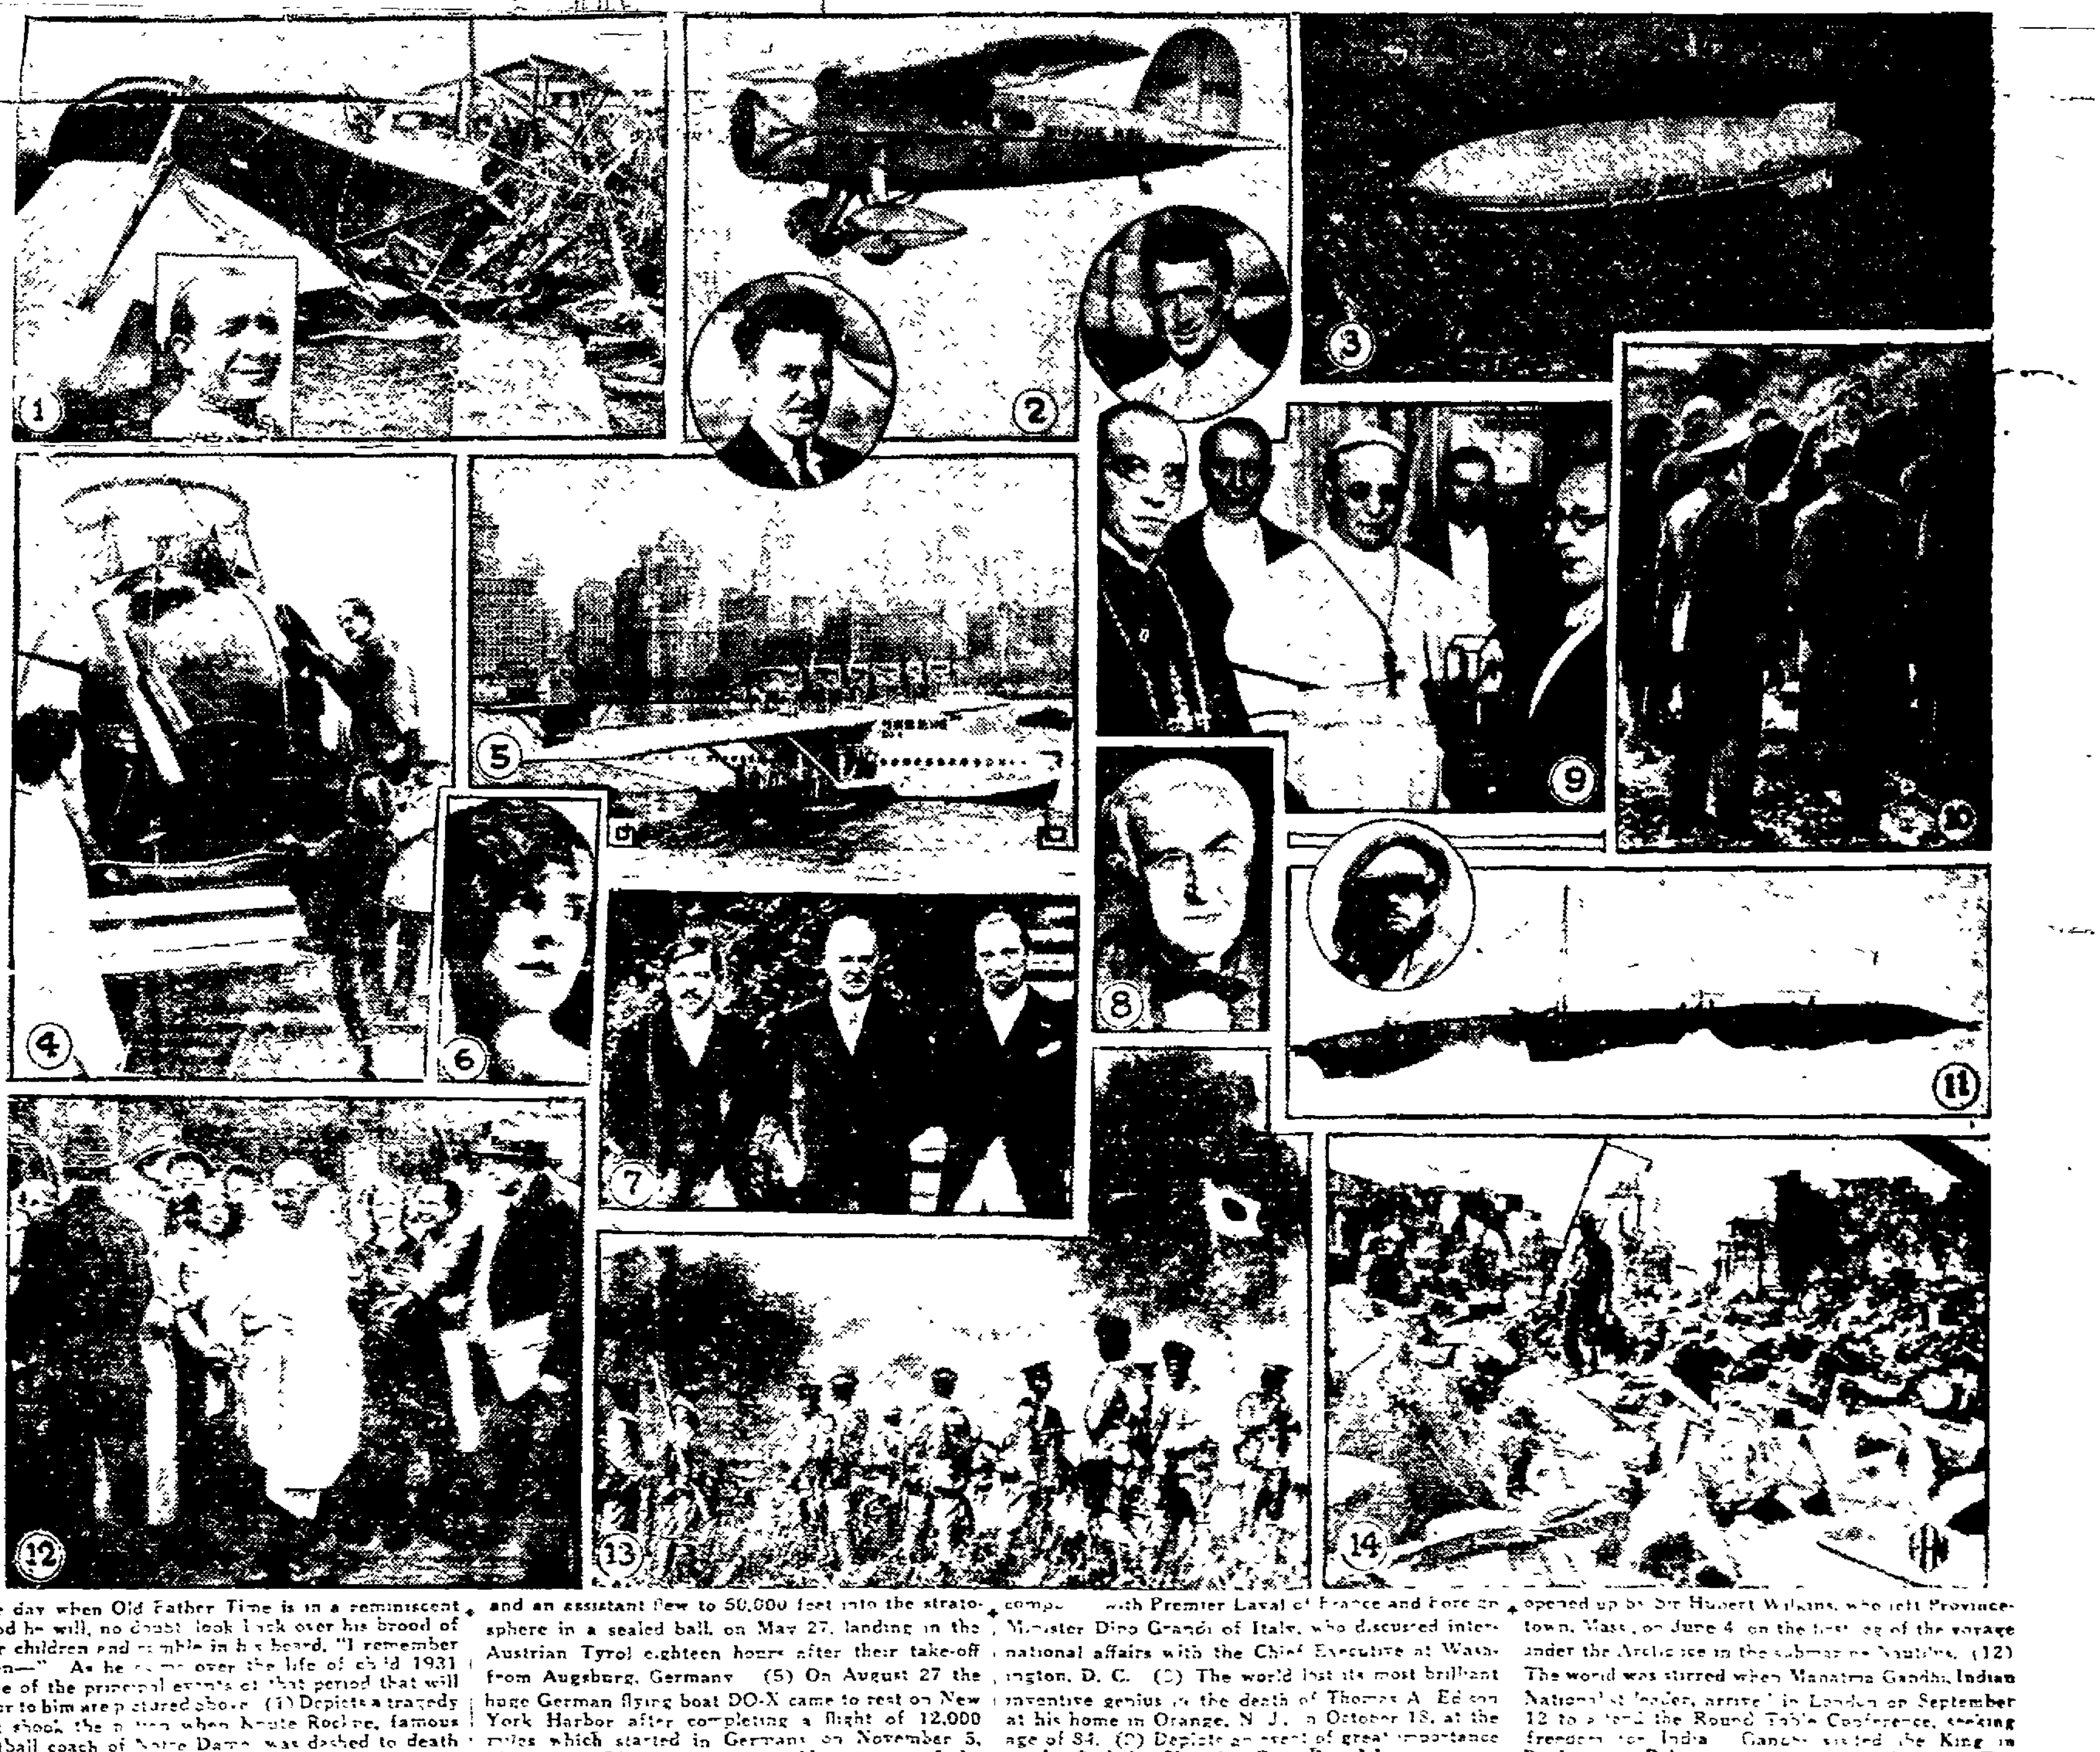
«« Pictorial Review of March of Events of 1931 »»



One day when Old Father Time is in a reminiscent mood he will, no doubt look back over his brood of year children and mumble in his beard, "I remember when—" As he runs over the life of child 1931 some of the principal events of that period that will occur to him are pictured above (1) Depicts a tragedy that shook the nation when Knute Rockne, famous football coach of Notre Dame was dashed to death in a plane on March 31, near Bazaar Kansas (2) Wiley Post and Harold Gatty accomplished "the impossible" by flying around the world in eight days and 15 hours, starting and finishing the epic flight at Roosevelt Field, New York. (3) The largest dirigible in the world, the U. S. S. Akron, was successfully launched and made her maiden trip at [illegible] Ohio, on September 23. (4) Auguste Piccard and an assistant flew to 50,000 feet into the stratosphere in a sealed ball on May 27, landing in the Austrian Tyrol eighteen hours after their take-off from Augsburg, Germany (5) On August 27 the huge German flying boat DO-X came to rest on New York Harbor after completing a flight of 12,000 miles which started in Germany on November 5, 1930. (6) The most impenetrable mystery of the year was the death of Starr Faithfull, beautiful New York society girl, whose body was found on a deserted beach on Long Island. Whether she was the victim of murder, suicide or accident has never been established (7) The year was remarkable for the number of foreign diplomats who came here to confer with the President. Mr. Hoover is shown in company with Premier Laval of France and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, who discussed international affairs with the Chief Executive at Washington, D. C. (8) The world lost its most brilliant inventive genius in the death of Thomas A. Edison at his home in Orange, N. J., on October 18, at the age of 84. (9) Depicts an event of great importance to the Catholic Church Pope Pius XI is shown as he delivered the first radio address from the new station built in Vatican City, February 12 (10) Spain became a Republic with the abdication of King Alfonso on April 14 His queen, Victoria, who fled with him, is shown bidding farewell to her courtiers on the French border where she found refuge. (11) A new field of exploration was opened up by Sir Hubert Wilkins, who left Provincetown, Mass., on June 4 on the first leg of the voyage under the Arctic ice in the submarine Nautilus. (12) The world was stirred when Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, arrived in London on September 12 to attend the Round Table Conference, seeking freedom for India Gandhi visited the King in Buckingham Palace wearing a loin cloth (13) The dove of peace was again put to flight when Japanese forces invaded Manchuria (14) On March 31, a catastrophe overwhelmed Managua, Nicaragua, when an earthquake shook the city to its foundations, killing approximately 2,000 persons and causing property damage estimated at $30,000,000, as well as injuring 10,000 of the population.

To the Weekly Readers of the Lutheran church notices:

"A Safe Journey, in the name Jesus of Nazareth" we bid you the year 1932. We have all started upon a journey of days. We all started at the same instant and we shall all complete the journey at the same in- We know not whither the will bring us, nor what our experience will be along the way; know only the length of the journey, though for some of us the will seem longer, for others shorter. Nor do we know whether shall complete the journey upon earth; quite probably some of us shall finish the year in another world.

"A Safe Journey, in the name of Jesus our only Saviour," is not only expression of good will, but a prayer that God's grace and blessing attend you.

FIRST UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST
W. F. Rutherford, Pastor

The records of another year have been made, it is not the question of what kind of a record we have made but have we confessed our mistakes and asked forgiveness for our sins. We are entering another year and we have before us a clean page. May we resolve to keep it clean. The way to do this is to begin now and keep every good resolution we have made and one is that we will attend the house of worship each Sabbath. Begin right and keep right and the end will be all you have hoped it to be.

Our services open at 9:15, with a class for every age.

Morning Worship at 10:30. "New Things" will be the subject, discussed.

The young people will meet at 6 p. m. A good fellowship will be yours if you attend. The adults should learn that the way to keep the youth is to be with them. So you attend this service.

The new elected officer will be installed next Sunday. Be sure to attend the election this Sunday.

The union services will be held at this church Sunday evening. All who are interested in a real evangelistic awakening should attend these services.

The Church Invites You

THE WORTH OF GOING TO CHURCH

While the value of church going is mainly measured in spiritual terms according to Roger Babson there results added values which would enter into financial and material considerations. He says, "Statistics show that 80 per cent of the business buildings of America are owned by active church members, 76 per cent of bank savings are credited to church people, 62 per cent of our factories are in the hands of religious men and 81 per cent of our farms are owned by men who go to church almost every Sunday.

Going to church helps to build character and it is character that counts everywhere. All men prefer to do business with men of character. Church going, therefore is a good habit. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

A Happy and a Blessed New Year. If in this year 1932 we have the blessing of God upon the work of our hands all other things will go well with us. But God bids us seek His Face. We cannot go our own way most of the time and then when we get in trouble expect God to rush to our help. God does not work that way. We must cooperate with Him. We must give Him our devotion, our loyalty, our love. Start the New Year by attending the services of your church. Make church attendance a habit, then it will be easy. If we want the church to give of its beneficent influence we must enable the church to do it by our attendance and support. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

News Item

Parish Orchestra preparing for program.

The Chillicothe Larger Parish Band which played numerous summer engagements is being enlarged into an orchestra for usage in winter program. The Band has not been discontinued but will be used in orchestral work for the winter programs.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Huff are supervising this work for the Parish. Parish orchestra will play at the bi-parish meeting that will be held on the Sunday afternoon of the seventeenth of January. The Ross County Parish and Chillicothe Parish are uniting for a Parish rally meeting that will be held in Trinity church, Chillicothe. It will also be the occasion of the second quarterly conference. Dr. R. O. McClure the new superintendent will preside. As the special guest speaker for the rally Dr. Mark A. Dawber of Philadelphia, superintendent of the rural work, Board of Home Missions and Church Extension of the M. E. Church will deliver the message. He will also answer questions as to the nature of parish work and rural enterprise. The meeting will be open to the general public.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

The gospel of St. John was written much later than the other three, in John's old age, omitting the life story of Jesus, many of his parables and miracles; it is rich in Christ's private conversations and his most precious discourses about himself; the gospel affirms Christ's deity and emphasizes the place of faith and witnessing in His followers.

V. 1. "In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word was God." The Word is all that God has to say to man in any way and by any method; that is what Christ was and is. The Greek term for Word is logos which includes reason as may be known from the fact that the word logic is devived from this word, logos. Christ appeals to reason and satisfies the intellect.

Vs. 2: 3. "The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made through him; and without him was not anything made that hath been made." John declares Jesus' eternal subsistence, his eternal subsistence, his eternal intercommunion with God, his eternal identity with God, his eternal associate with God as creator.

V. 4. "In Him was life; and the life was the light of men. "Christ was life and therefore he could raise the dead and was master of the grave. Light means wisdom both to his followers.

V. 5. "And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness apprehendeth it not." The world was full of the darkness of sin when Christ came, but the light of Christianity is ever contending against the darkness. It is the nature of darkness not to understand the light.

Vs. 6. 7. "There came a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for witness, that he might bear witness of the light, that all might believe through him." As John was the pathmaker for Christ so every Christian is to be the pathmaker for the Savious. As John was a witness for Christ, so are we to be witnesses.

V. 9. "There was the true light, even the light which lighteth ever man, coming into the world." God's influence on us is not dependent upon our recognition of him. Unbelievers enjoy many blessings of Christianity.

V. 10. "He was in the world and the world was made through him and the world knew him not." To Christ is due the glory of every condition which makes life endurable for humanity today. Christ is not unreal even when his is not recognized.

Vs. 11. 12. "He came to his own and they were his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he the right to become the children of God." A true reception of Christ is of three parts: belief, sympathy, service. We must believe that he is what he claims to be; we must love him and desire what he desires and we must serve him with joyful obedience.

V. 13. "Who were born not of blood nor of the will or the flesh nor of the will of man, but of God." There is a spiritual birth for each individual; it is a supernatural event.

V. 14. "And the Word become flesh and dwelt among us (and we behold his glory, glory as of the only begotten of the Father) full of grace and glory." The incarnation of God in the man Jesus is the greatest event in history.

V. 15. "John beareth witness of him and crieth, saying, This was he of whom I said, He that cometh after me is before me: for he was before he." Jesus came after John in point of time, but was before him in point of authority and power.

V. 16. "For of his fullness we all receive and grace for grace." His fullness is an inexhaustible reservior; our filling is an illimitable endowment. John exalts humanity by declaring that it is possible for man to receive Christ in his fullness, grace being constantly added to grace.

How Proceed to Improve the Worship Period in the Sunday School

A school that has good equipment and good teachers but which does not have anything significant in its worship program is on the whole wasting its time and effort.

In the first place, the religious leaders must feel the importance of worship in religious education realizing that the worship of almighty God is the main thing in the Christian life, the very heart of the Christian religion.

It would be advisable to select pupils in each class who will serve as leaders in worship; this may be done by taking them to a beautifully conducted service of worship which would draw him to approach God reverently and instill a spirit of gratitude and praise. By special instruction, these selected pupil leaders may be encouraged to make much of private worship as a background for a finer type of public worship.

Having caught the spirit of worship, the teachers and leaders of religious education with the selected groups of pupils may plan together such services of worship as will best meet the needs of those participating, they themselves setting examples in worship. For after all real worship is caught rather than taught.

No matter who started the misunderstanding or quarrel, it is your place to do what you can to end it.

SERMON SENTENCES

The righteous man never banks on his own goodness.

A loveless home is a prison; a loving home is a palace.

Children remember what you do but forget easily what you say.

A great man's power is his character.

The service of all men is the measure of their friendliness.

To make friends one must be friendly.

Courtesy makes friends, fidelity keeps them.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. What are the special characteristics of the gospel of St. John?
2. What are the important facts regarding the life of St. John?
3. What was the purpose of this gospel?
4. In what ways did Jesus show us God?
5. Of what values is the incarnation of Christ to Christian faith?
6. How is Christ, who is the Way, the Truth and the Life not more popular in all nations?

Clericus says, "It is by virtue of the gospel of Christ that there is made to all mankind such a clear revelation of God that he may be known ~~as~~ a ~~Father of~~ love, offering ways and means for me to become like Him through the offers of His Son, Jesus Christ, the Revealer."

Lesson Prayer, "Open thou our eyes that we may behold the majesty of the Father through Jesus Christ and help us to respond to the will of God as revealed through Christ that we may enter into divine relations with the Father."

Washington Bicentenary

ALL America, every American, will celebrate this year the bicentenary of George Washington. The celebration will be the most elaborate, complete and comprehensive the county has ever known.

When the celebration closes the nation should be steeped in Washington lore and the early colonial history associated with his name. Moreover, it should have a better mind picture of the first president, although every American is reasonably familiar with his portrait.

The federal government will do its part in this work of stamping the likeness of Washington upon the popular mind by issuing a complete set of postage stamps reproducing every Washington portrait of reasonable authenticity.

Private interests motivated by hope of private profit will also help in the good work. One group conceived the idea of selling Washington stamps of no postal value for one cent each and sought, but did not win, congressional approval of the plan.

Exploitation of the Washington bicentenary for private profit will be extensive. Some people will make money out of it, and it is right that some of them should. Washington shrines will be visited by hundreds of thousands of patriotic pilgrims from every corner of the land and those who cater to their needs and wishes will be rendering a quais-patriotic service although they will be commercializing the bicentenary and converting to private profit the patriotic spirit inspired by the celebration. But there will be fakers and get-rich-quick-easy-money schemes for separating the patriot from his money and their victims will be legion.

Smaller Wheat Acreage

FAIR prospects are seen for a 10 per cent reduction in the wheat crop of the United States, an eventuality that would be welcome in view of the current low prices and surplus.

This promising prospect is due to a number of things. Some wheat growers have voluntarily reduced their acreage because of world overproduction. The drouth which prevailed over some of the principal wheat-growing states last fall prevented some of the seed from germinating and made planting futile in many sections.

An unfavorable winter may further reduce the 1932 harvest without financial loss to the farmers who stand a better chance of taking a profit from a small crop than from a harvest that increases the world surplus of wheat.

Out of this reduction in wheat acreage may come a greater diversification of farming in areas where agriculture has been a one-crop affair. There will be less dependence upon a commodity which for a decade has proved anything but provident. Wheat probably will always be the main support of what now constitutes the wheat country but the time is coming when that country can drawn, from other industries and crops when wheat fails.

DEERCREEK-TWP

For the fourth month, ending Dec. 24 our per cent of attendance was 96.8 percent with an average daily attendance of 330.78. 230 pupils were not absent or tardy. Our total attendance for the month was 345, 193 boys and 152 girls.

We are well pleased with the attendance considering the fact that several surrounding districts report numerous cases of scarlet fever and mumps.

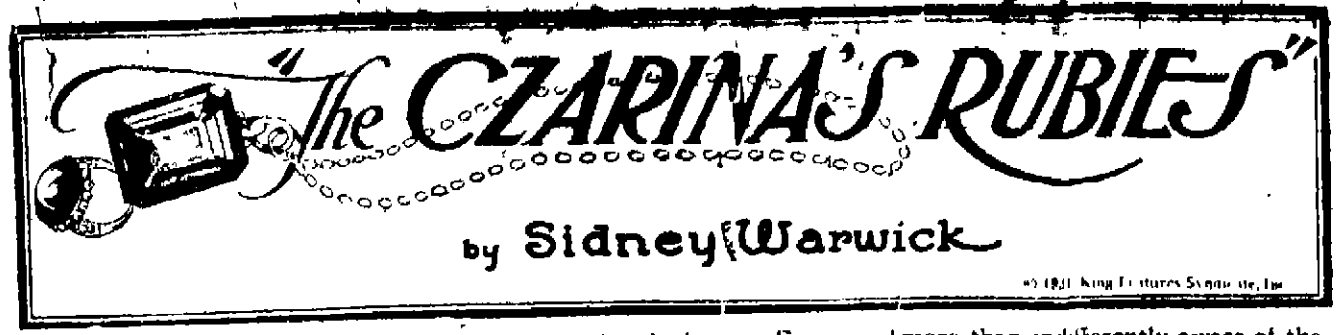
Considerable rivalry has developed between several of the upper grades to see which room can turn in the highest per cent of attendance. For this month the sixth grade ranks first, the eighth second, and the third grade third. We are hoping the rivalry is contageous and spreads to some of the grades. An operetta, Tommy Murlow.

The Christmas program presented by the even numbered grades on last Wednesday evening was very well attended, in fact standing room was at a premium. The program consisted of a play, Red and the Christmas Whopper, presented by the sixth and eighth grades. An operetta Tommy Murphy's Christmas was presented by the second and fourth grades. Music between acts was furnished by the school orchestra. The program was in charge of Miss Cam[illegible] Miss Ater Mrs Wertman, Mr Smith and Miss Betts.

School was dismissed Thursday afternoon for the holidays and will be resumed Monday Jan 4.

On Friday evening Jan 1 the basketball teams will journey to Kingston.

Donald Carter and Fred Cor[illegible]an will represent our school in the all state orchestra, which plays in Memorial Hall Columbus O Dec 30. We understand that these boys were the only ones chosen from Pickaway County.



CHAPTER LII

Jim saw the startled exchange of glances between Martell and Sant as Ilsham was surprised into this self-betrayal, their already awakened suspicions evidently suddenly deepened by this revelation that his pretended infirmity could only have been a blind or a disguise.

Just at first no one spoke. Slowly the girl opened her eyes from her momentary faintness, as Ilsham held her in his arms.

"I—I am all right now, thank you," she said.

Martell now hurried toward her, all solicitious concern.

"You had better lie down for a little while, my dear. Sant, I noticed a fire in the library, I wonder if I might——"

"Oh, of course. Miss Blair might like to rest on the couch there. I'll get some brandy——"

"But I am all right, really, now," Helen protested. "It was only a passing faintness. I don't want to trouble any one."

But her stepfather insisted. She was able to walk from the room with Martell and Sant supporting her.

"I ought to have known better than to mention Creyke's murder in her hearing," Ilsham said as if to himself with a little frown. Then a faintly amused smile seemed to touch the rather cynical face, and he gave a shrug. Well, that's that."

He dropped back into his chair, no longer troubling to keep up that fiction of lameness. Jim turned toward him as if to speak, but remembered that the door was wide open behind them. They waited in silence for Sant and Martell to return.

"I hope Miss Blair is better?" Jim asked, as the two men came back into the room.

IRONY

"Yes, I think so, thanks. Nothing much the matter, just a mere passing faintness," Martell said. He turned to the man with the crutches. "Our sympathies seem rather to have been wasted in your case, Mr. Ilsham," he added blandly.

"My lameness," you mean?" inquired the other man coolly.

"Well, if you could call it lameness," drawled Martell.

"Of course one can do things in moments of stress or emergency that one cannot do at normal times," returned Ilsham, quite unpertrubed, "~~and if my groggy foot punishes me~~ for it afterward—well, that's my own affair."

"For me this pretense of lameness explains a lot," broke in Sant with angry suspicion. He seemed unnerved, all on edge and his manners suffered "It was you, I suppose, who masqueraded as Severn just now outside this window."

"Masqueraded? But—how do you know it was a masquerade? You didn't think that at first, parried Ilsham with faintly raised eyebrows. "I remember you had just finished telephoning as I came to the house. Did you by any chance find out then that Severn after all had not 'escaped'?"

The thrust was deadly in its implication Sant's face went a little whiter. He had made a slip there. Martell realized it, too. He flung himself into the breach ironically polite.

"If it costs you so much pain to use your foot. I regret more than ever my daughter's sudden faintness."

But Martell was crossing blades with an antagonist as dexterous as himself.

"You are very kind. But that was your reputation in Buenos Aires, of course—before you had so regrettably to leave your flat in the Avenida de Mayo." And this time it was Martell's turn to start and change color. "By the way," added Ilsham, "Martin was your servant over there, I think, Dr. Martell?"

For a moment Martell seemed to have no answer. His antagonist had drawn blood. A swift, startled uneasy fear had crept into those eyes behind the tinted glasses. Fear . . . The sudden silence that followed was pregnant. Through it came a knock at the door. Martin appeared.

"Some one on the telephone for Mr. Wynter, sir."

Jim hurried out to the telephone As he was crossing the hall a thought made him pause. He turned as of casually to the manservant.

"Martin, do you ever regret the old days at the Avenida de Mayo?"

It was a shot in the dark. But Jim had just seen the effect on Martell of Ilsham's reference to that street in Buenos Aires and to Martin's unsuspected association with him there. One glance at the man's face was enough to satisfy Jim that it was a disturbing memory for Martin, too.

"You've got till tomorrow morning, Martin," he added in the same guarded voice. "But that's probably the outside limit."

Jim took up the receiver. "Milly's voice answered him.

"Oh, it's you, Jimmy? It was Bill I asked for, or meant to ask for—but it doesn't really matter. Something's happened at Manorways—and we want you to come back at once."

It was not like Milly's usual cheerful voice. There was a note of strain in its urgency.

"What has happened? What's wrong?" cried Jim quickly.

"I can't even begin to explain until I see you. And you mustn't be alarmed, Jimmy. Everything's all right now, only we've had an unnerving experience——"

"Nothing's happened to Katharine?" Jim's voice reflected his sudden anxious alarm at these mysterious hints.

"Didn't I say that everything's all right now?" answered Milly. "But we've had rather a shock. No, I can't talk over the 'phone. Only it was rather frightening—and we shall feel happier when you and Bill are back."

Her voice still sounded frightened, Jim thought.

"Why, of course. We'll come at once."

And Jim, mystified and more than a little anxious, hurried back to the room.

"Sant, you'll excuse us if we run away at once?" he said, "Mrs. Grayson has rung up rather urgently—the message was really for you, Bill——"

"But why——" Bill had jumped up, his face suddenly anxious. Both Sant and Martell seemed to be looking at Jim intently.

"Oh, Milly didn't explain," Jim said.

"And since you're going," cut in Ilsham, "perhaps you won't mind giving me a lift. Mustn't outstay my welcome," he added, with a gleam of cynical humor.

Ilsham did not offer to shake hands with either Sant or Martell, merely vouchsafing a little cool formal bow.

ANXIOUS

As they hurried out to the car Jim told a somewhat anxious Bill exactly what had been said over the telephone. Both men were feeling more than a little troubled by Milly's strange hints of something frightening. What could have happened at Manorways during their absence?

Bill jumped into the driver's seat and Jim and Ilsham got in behind. As the car shot up the drive Ilsham said rather an odd thing:

"Rather gave myself away just now, didn't I—over my crutches, I mean? But, of course," he added with a short laugh, "I made that 'slip' quite deliberately!"

* * *

Ilsham had gone, but something his coming had brought lingered behind like an intangible third presence in the room where Sant and Martell sat. Fear. A sudden disquieting fear that twitched uneasily at their nerves, whispering insistently of danger where they had never dreamed danger could exist.

Who could Ilsham be?

Until tonight Sant had been no more than indifferently aware of the existence of this recent comer to the village—a crippled artist, so he had heard, an insignificant nobody.

But very far from indifferent now. Tonight this man, no cripple tense, had revealed himself in a new startling light—a mysterious figure, a hostile figure—and dangerous!

Danger! Whether near or as yet far away Sant could not tell, had no means of knowing. Only, like a warning premonition of evil creeping chillingly through the secret alleys of his mind, the conviction possessed him that the danger was very real, merely biding its time.

FEAR

Not only that trick Ilsham had played on their nerves, his impersonation of the missing man . . . quite plainly Ilsham suspected their complicity in the plot against Severn. His shrewd guess that they had learned by telephone that Severn had not "escaped" was proof of it. But to Sant, looking back, almost everything Ilsham had said tonight was proof of it. Scarcely veiled double meaning, behind all his words.

And that reference to Buenos-Aires, that long past ugly chapter that Martell had thought closed forever in his Book of Life—that it should be no secret from Ilsham, was staggering.

And another thing. That intercepted anonymous letter to Wynter that had brought him and his accomplice so startling a shock Sant suddenly knew that the puzzling riddle of its authority was solved. Ilsham again, of course—that seemingly insignificant nobody, now revealed as a secret unsuspected enemy and spy!

"Sant," said Martell suddenly. "it's no use blinking facts. One false step now—and it may spell ruin for us! How near or how real this menace, we don't know—but we've got to alter our plans to meet it. If this man Ilsham was not in collusion with Wynter and Grayson before, we may be sure he will be after tonight And the way Ilsham deliberately showed his hand—that means he's pretty confident."

Sant wiped away a bead of sweat that had broken out on his forehead. The big man lacked Martell's nerve. Perhaps he suddenly saw the shadow of the end.

"We've got to alter all our plans while we have a margin of safety left," went on Martell. "We've got to make more than one decision tonight. But first of all I want a word with Martin."

His face looked dark and lowering as he strode out into the hall: called out Martin's name peremptorally. Presently the man appeared through the baize door.

"Martin," Dr. Martell said silkily, but the furious gleam in his eyes belied the smooth voice. "I never credited you with many brains But tonight, with your panic cry of 'he's escaped' you did your best to give everything away, you d——d fool!"

His smooth manner suddenly fell away. With a paroxysm of uncontrollable fury contoring the dark features Martell raised his fist passionately—would have struck Martin in the face, only that Sant sprang forward to deflect the blow with his arm.

"Don't make bad worse. Martell!" he cried warningly. "We can't afford to quarrel among ourselves, now of all times!"

Martin had drawn back, half cowering, yet half defiant.

"Don't do what you'll be sorry for, Martell, as long as you live!" he said in a low meaning voice, his eyes smouldering and baleful. "I'm not threatening—but I might be dangerous."

Martell looked at him hard for a moment. Then without another word he turned and went back into the room.

Theaters

AT THE CLIFTONA

Poignant human interest, comedy and details of the exciting life in a Mexican border town mingle in the first appearance on the screen together of Wallace Beery, hero of "The Big House," and Jackie Cooper, famous for "Skippy."

The pair are teamed in "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama, coming tomorrow to the Cliftona Theatre

Beery plays an old prize fighter, living with his small son in a border town where he is everlastingly trying to make a "comeback." There is a sensational prize fight thrills of racing at Caliente, and through it runs the stirring story of a father's love and his sacrifice to give the child the "break" he never could have.

King Vidor, whose sensational success with "Street Scene" and "The Big Parade" are history, directed the new production and a notable cast appears, including Irene Rich, Rosco Ates, Edward Brophy, Hale Hamilton, Jesse Scott and Marcia Mae Jones, Frances Marion, author of "The Big House" and "Min and Bill, wrote the story.

AT THE GRAND

James Cagney, who thrilled you not so long ago in the "The Public Enemy" comes to the Grand Theter Sunday next in a very different play, Warner Bros. "Blonde Crazy," also featuring blonde and brittle Joan Blondell. The two began their screen careerstogether in "Sinners' Holiday" but they are teamed for the first time in "Blonde Crazy"

Cagney, who so cleverly evidenced his genius for comedy in the bit in "The Millionaire" when he played a high-powered insurance salesman—gets a chance to display it royally as the snappy bellhop in "Blonde Crazy." Many of the exciting scenes are laid in the peacock alley of a big hotel, which is a meeting-place for shady ladies and gents of all descriptions who are in the business of making easy money. Bert the bellhop decides to beat them at their own game—and proceeds to do it—with such whirlwind zest that he enlist as a partner in the wise-cracking iniquity, the linen girl, Ann—played as only Joan could play it.

AT THE CIRCLE

When "Jaws of Hell" with its mightly climax re-enacting the stirring "Charge of the Light Brigade" is shown beginning Sunday at the Circle Theater, patrons will see a cast of 5,000 in a gigantic military spectacle, produced under the supervision of the British War Office.

Every schoolboy is familiar with the heroic attack, immortalized by Alfred Lord Tennyson in his famous tribute to the mere 600 horsemen who charged the whole might of the Russian army. From official sources, the real story of the tremendous blunder—for it was admittedly nothing less—is now exposed. The colossal mistake in transmitting orders to attack Russian guns, and the unquestioning discipline which carried out these orders, staggered the imagination of the world and won a lasting tribute to the brave men who participated.

SCHOOLS' PAPER—DEPARTMENT OF THE CIRCLEVILLE HERALD

NO. 16 OF VOL. 5. LEVILLE, OHIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY, 2, 1932. HARRY HOSLER, 34, EDITOR

PLAYERS AR PROGRESSIVE

The cast of 16 players and the chorus of 15 members report progress is being made in "WHO WOULDN'T BE CRAZY," a farce in three acts written by Katherine Kavanaugh for the Dramatic Publishing company, Chicago, Illinois, to be presented by the Thespian's Little Theatre, January 27 and 28.

They report that the play is an extraordinarily gay farce as new and smart and frivolous as the latest Paris hat, and as old in its appeal as love and laughter. It is admirably suited to high schools. Speedy Marshall, who has high-powered cars and airplanes to play with, while evading traffic cops, gets himself interned in an asylum for mild mental cases. His father decides to let him stay there to cure him of his speed mania

Then Lois Meredith trips across the scene, followed by her bevy of society girls who are planning an entertainment for the inmates. Events thereupon take an unexpected turn—it's Speedy who turns hem—and exciting action follows, st and furious. We mention only a jewel robbery and a kidnaping. The interest is tense. Each act works up to a splendid climax, and there are clever lines galore.

The parts are excellent in their distribution and appeal. Speedy himself, the lovely Lois, the appealing Evelyn, the three mischievous debs, Inmates one and two—apparently eccentric, hugely funny, and not a little mysterious when no one is around.

And Pluribus, the colored boy, is in love with Pendie short for Appendicitis, his chocolate-colored angel, though he doesn't get much peace when McCafferty, the hard-boiled traffic cop, is looking for Speedy.

The attractive parts are excellently adapted to those who are interested in dramatics. A success as soon as published, this play has broken all records in winning instant popularity. Everyone's crazy about it—and who wouldn't be?

TEACHERS GO TO MEETING

Teachers of the high school spent their Christmas vacations in various places this year. Some visited their homes out of the city and others stayed in Circleville.

Miss Marian Hitler left for New York City Christmas evening to spend the rest of her vacation

J. W. Fetherlin wished to find the widest spot in the country for his vacation so he can forget all state tests, all freshmen who try hard in English, forget about journalism students getting stories in on time, and read forty or perhaps one of his plays.

Principal E. I. Gephart, Supt. J. O. Eagleson, E. L. Daley, and S. T. Rife attended the convention of the Ohio Education Association from Tuesday to Thursday and spent the rest of the vacation at their homes. J. O. Eagleson also visited with his mother at Cambridge, O.

Misses Velma Watson, Elma Rains, Gertrude Pigman, and Margaret Mattinson spent their vacations at their respective homes.

C. F. Zaenglein enjoyed his two week's vacation at Wapokaneta.

Fred Watts spent the vacation in Circleville.

Coach P. S. Herberholz visited in Cincinnati.

Guidance Pupils Make Programs

Only one teacher announces plan for guidance; others say plans are indefinite pending a proposed meeting after holidays.

In the last guidance period each student prepared a study schedule covering 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. for school week.

"UNCOOP BIRDS"

Wanted—six male canary birds to fill the place of the six mocking birds suspended from junior-senior choruses.

Such would be the advertisement if the junior-senior chorus needed more canaries but—it doesn't. With all the other beautiful voiced nightingales in this chorus, me thinks they are better off without the helpful twitters of any more noisy canaries.

TEMPERANCE DAY PROGRAM

Temperance Day is to be observed here January 15, 1932, with a program, required by the law of Ohio, and in accordance with the Ohio statutes.

A program prepared by Dr. B. O Skinner, state director of education, suggested for Ohio schools is as follows:

Song to be selected by teachers.

Prayer by local minister or citizen.

Scripture readings from stated portions of the Bible.

Recitations selected and arranged for by local W. C. T. U

Song selected by committee

Debate by four older pupils Resolved. That moderate drinking of alcoholic liquors is more satisfactory as a temperance measure than total abstinence therefrom

Instrumental music selected by committee

A symposium of "ifs": 1 If my surgeon drank liquor 2 If the railroad engineer were allowed to drink liquor. 3 If all other automobile drivers but myself had a bottle of liquor along 4 If parents put liquor within reach of their children

Address on the history of the temperance movement in the United States by a citizen.

TO ORGANIZE FRATERNITY

HASTINGS, Nebraska, December 29, 1931—Pioneering in a nation-wide program designed to foster and promote the ideals of journalism in the high school publication field, Gamma Tau Beta, national honorary high school journalistic fraternity, is being organized with Circleville High School a charter member.

It is the aim of Gamma Tau Beta to assist its members in improving the standard of their publications through presenting to them new ideas and suggestions and making available contemporaries throughout the United States.

Editors and business managers who, throughout their publishing of high school papers of outstanding merit, indicate their adeptness in journalism, will be awarded membership in Gamma Tau Beta. Membership in Gamma Tau Beta will be carefully restricted to the executives of papers which possess distinct characteristics of merit.

Staff members other than the editors and business manager will not be eligible for membership. Four pupils may be eligible at Circleville the first and second semesters.

Facts About Your School

It seems that during the warm and bright sunny mornings of September, members of the faculty found it the most difficult time to arrive at school with promptitude. Monthly statistics prove the 8 tardy marks were put down for various teacher, none were absent. September morns seemed to becken students to arise early as only 30 pupils were tardy, 281 were neither absent nor tardy.

As October came around they seemed less apt to lie in bed in the morning, for there are only four marks recorded against the faculty. Substitutes had to be secured for the two and one-half days absence by the faculty members. As summer waved the student tardy victims found it hard to be at school on time, for 82 pupils were late during October, leaving only 241 neither absent nor tardy.

November seemed to becken colder weather; hence the school teacher properly had various excuses for the five tardy slips. They can boost of only having one-half day's absence recorded. November, with all its cold weather, finds 92 students unable to defy it and be on hand promptly when school opens. The number neither absent nor tardy becomes smaller and smaller, as the report shows only 233 under that heading.

There were no new pupils recorded for the opening month of school but four pupils withdrew that month. During October five new pupils enrolled but 8 withdrew. One new pupil was introduced into high school during November, but five made their adieus.

School must have appealed to students the first month as no cases of truancy were reported In October three people played the role of truant November seems to have a truancy allure; five cases were reported.

These statistics were gathered from the teachers' monthly reports to the principal. The eight grade is included

Better Smile Than Wish You Had

"S-M-I-L-E! Darn 'ya smile," is the theme song of Circleville High school for the week beginning with this publication.

Everyone who refuses to smile when smiled at receives, as a fine, a smart slap on the back.

Students! Here's your chance! When you're late and go to the principal's office for an excuse and he is grouchy, just smile—if he doesn't, slap him on the back. This also applies to any other teacher. If you haven't your lessons just smile your sweetest smile and he or she is forced to smile back or receive the penalty. Of course, don't forget your fellow students are forced to smile when you smile.

If you don't smile real sweet and fine;

The slapping pleasure will be mine.

A Youth's New Year's Prayer

I am boundless in health, dauntless in Courage, restless in Enegry.

On the threshold of Life I stand, face-front with my future.

I crave nutriment for my dreams, inspiration for my heart and hand and brain.

Within me slumbers a spirit of Industry, a desire for Leadership, a will for Service.

I turn to Education to waken me—to summon forth my hidden powers—to steady my impulses—to safeguard my ideals—to ripen my judgment.

Fortified by Education's strength I may find my sphere, do full service to myself, my Country and my God.

In Education I invest my Todays and live in anticipation of my Tomorrows.

May the "God of Learning" grant me guidance!

FORMER TEACHER IS HONORED

A. A. White, former teacher and principal of Franklin-st school was honored at a reception at the home of Charles and Mary Walters, Wednesday evening, when members of his first class including the sixth and seventh grade at Franklin school in 1920, assembled.

In remembrance of his loyalty and service, the class presented Mr. White with a Bible upon which his name was engraved. In accepting the gift Mr. White stated that "The appreciation of such friendship and loyalty can never be expressed in words."

Delightful hospitalities were extended by Charles and Mary Walters and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walters.

In checking over the class of thirty students, five of that number have reached the goal as teachers and one as a nurse while most of the others have proven themselves to be successful clerks, musicians, or mechanics. Only one of the number has passed away but her name was spoken of as a real friend and co-worker of the group Several of the class could not be present because of sickness while others were living too far away but the class had a good word for each one and wishing each one a very happy and prosperous New Year. Some who were absent sent their best regards to the class and expressed their regret in not being able to be present.

Those who helped to make the affair a success were Carl Helen Bartholomew, May and daughter, Frances Mable Heise, Norma Ross, and Mary Walters, Lucy and Seall, Edna Timmons, Chri Wefler and Mr. White.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

The school is planning to give especial emphasis to correct spelling during the second semester, in preparation for the proposed county spelling contest next spring.

Practically all quarantine signs have disappeared from the Ashville district and we trust the rest of the school year will see no necessity for the reappearance of any of them.

The first grade children enjoyed their Christmas tree very much. A program was given last Thursday afternoon, consisting only of their activity program of the day.
